Challenging the Development of the Space Industry

Until now, the space industry has been inaccessible, open only to engineers blessed with extraordinary luck and customers with deep pockets.

But the truth is, the space industry must be full of dreams - it's an industry that can go anywhere and shape humanity's future.

We aim to be a company where young engineers can dream big and challenge themselves to build rockets. By prioritizing hands-on experience and data, and implementing Test Driven Development centered on combustion tests and flights, we will create a future where rockets are safer and cheaper, making space accessible to everyone.
